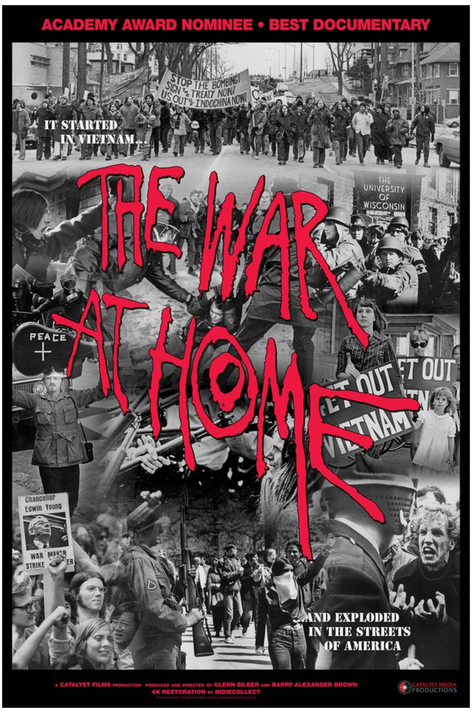
View this email in your browser

INDIECOLLECT

Restored in 4K by IndieCollect, Glenn Silber and Barry Alexander Brown's THE WAR AT HOME screens at Harvard Film Archive tonight, July 1

Praised by Michael Moore as "one of the best documentaries ever made," this 1979 film about the anti-Vietnam war movement documents a turning point in American history. Having accessed a treasure trove of unprocessed 16mm newsreel from the 1960s, the filmmakers chronicle the University of Wisconsin student protests which culminated in violent rebellion. The Oscar-nominated film resonates today more than ever and reminds us of the importance of preserving media archives.

THE WAR AT HOME
July 1, 2019 at 7pm
Harvard Film Archive
Carpenter Center
24 Quincy Street
Cambridge, MA 02138
More information



More praise for THE WAR AT HOME

Meticulously constructed ... One of the great works of American documentary moviemaking.
— New York Film Festival (2018)

The reflective narrative offered by THE WAR AT HOME, about the charged, escalating battleground that was the University of Wisconsin campus in Madison is an invaluable one. Never more so than today.
— Los Angeles Times (2018)

THE WAR AT HOME documentary returns with a message that still resonates.
— Detroit Free Press (2018)

It was an honor for IndieCollect to restore THE WAR AT HOME into this dazzling 4K version. If you live in the Boston area, don't miss your chance to see this extraordinary film!

Sandra Schulberg and the IndieCollect Team

P.S: We are excited to be working with the Harvard Film Archive on the restoration of The Free Voice of Labor and Anarchism in America, both by Steve Fischler and Joel Sucher.

Share Tweet Forward

Copyright © 2019 Laboratory for Icon & Idiom, Inc. DBA IndieCollect, All rights reserved.

Our mailing address is:
IndieCollect
675 Third Ave
32nd Floor
New York, NY 10017

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list.